Skin Lightening Cream

All women regardless of age or ethnicity want even, clear and radiant skin, Nature's World Cosmetics offers a natural skin lightening cream that is soft and absorbent with results.

Skin lightening creams, also known as skin brightening creams, are designed to lighten skin color. They work by decreasing the amount of melanin, which is a pigment produced by skin cells and determines how light or dark our skin appears. These products can be used as spot treatment or for a lighter complexion overall. However, many skin lightening creams have been found to have dangerous side effects and are not approved for use by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

- What Are Skin Lightening Creams?

Skin lightening creams cover a broad range of products designed to bleach and lighten the skin. They do this by targeting the cells that produce melanin. The creams can be used all over the face for a lighter complexion or to spot treat areas of the skin, such as age spots or acne scars. While several varieties are available online and over the counter (OTC), it's best to talk with your doctor before using skin lightening creams. Prescription products are regularly tested for safety and efficacy, unlike OTC products, which could contain dangerous ingredients.

- How Skin Lightening Cream Works

Skin lightening creams contain ingredients that work to decrease your body's production of melanin. Melanin is responsible for the pigment in your skin, and is made by cells called melanocytes. Bleaching products work by lowering the number of melanocytes in your skin.

Most skin lightening creams contain hydroquinone, which is known to decrease melanocytes. Vitamin C, also a common ingredient in skin lightening creams, is an antioxidant that is known to lower melanin production in our cells. Glycolic acid, which is also found in many skin brightening creams, works as an exfoliant and helps to brighten the skin by clearing away dead cells.

- Benefits

Cosmetic Benefits

The main benefit that skin lightening creams may provide is a balanced pigmentation, even skin coloring, and reduced appearance of dark spots, freckles, and acne scars.

Skin brightening products can come in the form of creams, lotions, oils, and serums. Skin bleaching products are also available in injectable options. If you're planning on trying one, talk with your dermatologist about the best fit. Creams and oils are usually heavier and better for dry skin. If your skin tends to be on the oily side, opt for a lighter serum. Cosmeceuticals, cosmetic products that also provide health benefits, are a popular option for skin brightening. These products usually come in the form of a cream or serum, and can be used to treat dark spots and acne scars.

If you have noticed skin darkening or new freckles or moles over the years, you may be curious about skin lightening products. Many people have sought these creams to help reduce age spots and scars, as well as to make freckles less noticeable.

Medical Benefits

There are several medical reasons behind dark spots or an uneven skin tone. Aging and sun damage can leave dark spots on the face. Melasma and post-inflammatory hyperpigmentation (PIH) are both conditions that cause darkening over areas of the body that are exposed to the sun more often, such as the forehead and cheeks. PIH leads to a darker complexion in areas that were inflamed because of trauma, which can include scarring or severe acne that leaves dark spots after it resolves.

Hormonal imbalances and endocrine disease like Addison's disease can also lead to darkening of the skin. Addison's disease is when the adrenal gland doesn't produce enough of certain hormones. Those with Addison's disease produce a high level of adrenocorticotrophic hormone, which stimulates the melanocytes to produce more melanin, resulting in skin darkening. People who are affected by these illnesses may use skin lightening creams to counteract the darkening effects on their skin.
